

ABSTRACT

A stable water gas shift catalyst comprising platinum, rhenium and lanthanum on an 5 anatase titanium dioxide support is described. The catalyst of the present invention is at least as efficient in converting CO to CO₂ at low temperatures as the catalysts of the prior art. Further, the catalyst is about three times more stable than the catalysts of the prior art.